Tim Nelson is the co-founder and Interim Chief Executive Officer of Hope for Justice and Slave-Free Alliance. Hope for Justice is an international charity working to bring an end to modern slavery and human trafficking and offers an effective and proven model that is replicable, scalable, and award-winning. The charity's vision is to live in a world free from slavery and its work across five continents and in 10 countries is focused on preventing exploitation, rescuing victims, restoring lives and reforming society. It does this through community engagement and outreach; investigation and rescue; survivor support and advocacy; community prevention and anti-trafficking education; residential and non-residential aftercare and transitional care; family reintegration; training; campaigning and policy work; and business engagement via our Slave-Free Alliance division. Tim created and launched Slave-Free Alliance which now boasts collaboration with 85 multinational organisations including 8 FTSE 100 companies. Tim has a background in Finance and Technology.
